The Crisis In American Law

Discussing the "Crisis in American Law" in Harper's Magazine for January, 1926, Roscoe Pound, Dean of the Harvard Law School, says in part: "Our legal and judicial institutions are under fire, and justly so."

"A highly developed system of substantive law and a specialized machinery of prosecution, administration, judicial organization, legal procedure, and penal treatment, devised and shaped by pioneer, rural, agriculture America of the first half of the nineteenth century, are struggling with the wholly different conditions of the urban, industrial society of today. In the huge cities which have grown up all over the country in ill adaptation of the machinery to the task is acute."

"In England, where a like situation existed in the nineteenth century, they overhauled the judicial organization completely in 1873. Thus far the same American remedy has been to add judges or create more courts, while keeping up the essential features of a model designed for every different task to be performed under different conditions, and for a much less volume of business."

"With respect to procedure, there has been much improvement in the past twenty-five years. But here also the method and presuppositions are those of a pioneer, rural, agriculture society, and a complete overhauling must come eventually, as it did in England."

"The cult of incompetency, which is an unhappy by-product of democracy, will go along with popular impatience to rush us for a time into ill-conceived projects. Popular suspicion of lawyers, and hence of well-conceived and carefully prepared projects of reform, will impede the adoption of durable measures. Nor may it be denied that the self-interest of the lower stratum of the bar is not unlikely to put obstructions in the way of reform."

"But these obstacles will hinder little, in the end, if our projects of reform have a sound basis in thorough, impartial, scientific research."

"If our law schools were endowed and equipped for research as our medical schools are, we might expect great things from them. Nowhere else shall we find the conditions of tenure, independence of politics, and assured competency, scientific spirit and scientific method, without which the necessary research will fall short of its purpose."

"We cannot expect legislative commissions at all comparable to the English royal commissions of the last century. We can expect our law schools, through chairs of criminal law, of legislation, of judicial organization and administration, and of comparative law, to lay broad and deep foundations on which our legislators may build with confidence."

GOVERNOR IN SECOND ATTACK

GEN. BUTLER ORDERED OUT REFUSES TO QUIT

KEYES IS AGAIN CENSORED FOR PART IN PAROLE

Governor Accuses Keyes Of Concealing Some Of The Facts

PAROLE STARTS ROW Prison Board Included In Second Criticism By The Governor

Governor Richardson yesterday again accused District Attorney Asa Keyes of Los Angeles of having "willfully concealed the criminal past of 'Big Hutch' Hutchings, with intentions of deceiving the Prison Board and making it appear that the notorious confidence operator was entitled to the parole recently granted him. Hutchings is under arrest in New York and is fighting extradition. Governor Richardson has sent Harry Lutgens to New York, his private secretary, to state reasons why Hutchings should be returned to California to finish out his term in San Quentin."

Governor Richardson charges Keyes of neglecting to forward the prison board information regarding Hutchings' history of previous convictions and his previous criminal record as required by the county officers under Section 1163 and 1192-A of the penal code.

He also states that Keyes willfully, with intent to deceive the prison board, concealed from it, information of other criminal acts on the part of Hutchings, and that he made it appear that Hutchings was entitled to parole at the time when the board granted the parole.

The governor also criticized the members of the prison board for "failing and neglecting to make a proper investigation" before granting the parole to Hutchings.

STANDARD OIL AIR MARKERS TO BE PLACED

(By Universal Service) SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—Contracts have been let by the Standard Oil company of California, for marking the airways from Seattle to San Diego. In cooperation with the Air Service of the Army and Navy more than 100 towns have been selected, the names of which will be painted on roofs of Standard Oil buildings as guides to aviators. In addition at each point, an arrow indicating true north will be placed as further aid to air navigation.

Subsequently the company will publish an aviators guide giving location of all landing fields.

The Airways as mapped by the U. S. army air service run from Seattle south through Portland to Redding. Here the route divides, one course leading from Redding to San Francisco the other from Redding to Sacramento and thence to Fresno and on to Los Angeles via Bakersfield. Southward from San Francisco, one airway leads to Fresno and thence to Los Angeles and another to Los Angeles via San Jose, Gilroy, and Coalinga. The airway from Los Angeles to San Diego follows the coast.

SKAGGS ADMITS ATTEMPT TO DEFRAUD WIFE

Oscar P. Skaggs, owner of a group of well-known chain stores, admitted yesterday that the transfer of stock in the Skaggs Cash Stores to his brother, Loran L. Skaggs, was a conspiracy to deprive his wife of part of their community property. Skaggs asks that the divorce action which his wife has instituted be denied. Charges of cruelty and allegations that he spent the night in a room at the Hotel Oakland, drinking and carousing with a "Miss Terry" were denied by Skaggs in his answer.

Sensational charges of cruelty and neglect and allegations that she had been made the victim of a conspiracy to deprive her of her share of community property valued at more than $2,000,000 were made by Mrs. Skaggs in her divorce complaint filed August 25. Prohibition Party Qualified Party Is Decision Made (By Universal Service) SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—The Prohibition party of California "is a qualified party" and entitled to a place on the ballot in the coming state election was the opinion rendered today by Attorney General U. S. Webb to Secretary of state Jordan.

Attorney General Webb was requested for an opinion on the question because the party did not cast three per cent of the vote at the presidential election last year for presidential electors.

Under a supreme court decision the attorney general pointed out presidential electors are not state officials, therefore he said, the vote for them did not come within the provisions of the three per cent law.

Battle Against World Court Is In Full Swing

By CHARLES N. WHEELER, Staff Correspondent Universal Service

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—Congressman George H. Tinkham of Boston, staunch Republican and lifelong friend of President Coolidge, today issued an appeal to Massachusetts and New England to rise against the proposed American adhesion to the World Court.

This is the first open break in the Coolidge-Butler organization in the home States since the national administration swung behind the court. There are indications that the breach in the G. O. P. machinery will be widened perceptibly and seriously shortly.

Tinkham, with 300 years of Americanism behind him, intimate of the late Senator Lodge and author of the bill now pending in Congress for a national monument to Lodge, makes the flat-footed statement that Massachusetts is opposed to the court.

In thus taking with President Coolidge and Chairman Butler he makes it plain that he is not swayed by personal considerations, but solely by the peril he sees confronting the United States. He says it is even greater than in 1920. He calls upon the people. (Continued on Page 6.)

"This situation unparalleled in Philadelphia history was brought about when Mayor Kendrick read in today's newspapers General Butlers announcement that he had resigned from the Marine corps in order to remain as director of Public Safety for Philadelphia."

Rumors flew thick and fast. Crowds, after the announcement gathered in all corridors in the city hall.

Conferences came and went in quick succession all afternoon in the offices of both men. The mayor finally set at rest all doubts when he sent Butler his letter demanding his resignation.

WORLD COURT NEXT

It looks now as if America is going to join the World Court, and that right soon. Opposition continues in various quarters, but a canvass of the senate is said to show that the advocates of adherence have a two-thirds majority.

There was anticipation of a heated and prolonged debate when the issue was taken up yesterday. The irreconcilables, headed by Senator Borah, are expected to use all their ammunition. The lines are laid for a big battle. But the Washington correspondents foresee almost certain victory for President Coolidge and the many powerful groups, public and private, who have long urged this step.

Possibly less senatorial opposition will develop than is now looked for. The European situation is greatly changed since the last debate on this issue. The Locarno agreements, ratified in London, and the accompanying evidences of good will and co-operation between Germany and the Allies, seem to show a Europe sincerely turning toward peace, disarmament and mutual helpfulness. America can co-operate more freely and safely with the other powers in such a mood.

After Locarno, American participation in the international court of justice seems the next obvious step. The senate can hardly help sensing that, as the public does.

FAITH IN FRANCE

A momentous event occurred in the German reichstag the other day. The majority voted to approve the Locarno agreements—but that was not it. The spirit was more important than the vote.

Foreign Minister Stresemann stood up and told his fellow-Germans, "We have confidence in France!" And as an American correspondent reports the scene, "A German reichstag which has echoed for eleven years with denunciations of the reich's Latin neighbor, roared with applause from the bulk of the deputies on the floor and from the galleries, jammed to the choking point with representative Germans."

Little sign there of the "will to revenge" which followed the "will to conquer."

And why does Germany frankly echo his confidence in France professed by the brilliant Stresemann? Because, as he himself explains, "The France of today is not the France of Poincaré."

The French sword-rattling has ceased. France at last is ready to conciliate her enemy and cooperate in the peaceful restoration of Europe Briand stands for common sense and good will.

This is the big fact which emerged from Locarno and has been evident since in all the confusion of French politics. And if Germany can "trust France," the rest of the world can.

COLUMBUS SAILS

It is truly no wonder that Spanish sailors of the Fifteenth Century were afraid to join the expedition of discovery headed by Christopher Columbus.

The sailing interest of Palos, the port from which the ships were to sail, had maps that showed curious and terrible things beyond the horizon—monsters, griffins, chimeras and on some there was even a bloodthirsty Satan lying in wait for foolhardy mariners. The poor sailors had but one thought: Heaven would be angry and wreak vengeance.

At first it was thought that the ships could be manned only by criminals from the jails. These were promised no prosecution until two months after their return.

The Pinzon brothers, however, who were powerful citizens and navigators of Palos, exerted their influence and a crew was got together—a strange, motley crew, composed of Spaniards, Moors, Jews, one or two Irishmen and a Chinese.

The Pinzon family provided one ship, the Niño; it is thought that the Pinta was commandeered by the government for the voyage. The scarcity of ships was acute. At length a ship a little larger than either of these was found—an older boat, but one which Columbus pronounced seaworthy, since to wait for another would mean more delay. He called her the Santa Maria and made her his flagship. Each of the other vessels was in command of one of the Pinzon brothers.

We have grown up in the belief that Columbus' ships were small and light—as indeed they would be for our day. But they were large for his time.

As the time for the departure drew near the people of Palos became alarmed. They were a superstitious folk who believed more in the signs of the stars than they did in what little science was then known.

Had it not been for their greed for gold the sailors would probably have deserted before ever the anchor was weighed.

But each had been promised large shares of treasure. Stories of fabulous wealth had spread.

On the morning of August 3, 1492, Christopher Columbus, the humble son of the wool-comber turned his back on Palos and the rising sun and sailed due west to find a short route to India, the land of spices.

"Will they ever come back?" the simple people of Palos asked one another.

NEW YORK has always doted on parades! And this, one of its largest, was the culmination of two weeks' rejoicing. New York, blind now to radio and telegraphic photography, was wild with delight in 1858 over the marvel of communication from England being flashed over a slender length of cable—a matter before of two or three weeks' voyage.

Cheers—cheers—all along the route of the parade at the sight of the coil enthroned on an Adams Express wagon and the model of the good "Niagara" riding on the blue shoulders of the crew which had successfully completed the great task.

Plum Pudding and Coffee

INSTEAD of preparing the ingredients for the traditional plum pudding, and spending long hours steaming them, the modern housewife purchases her pudding already prepared in an air-tight can. She preserves the spirit of the tradition without the loss of time.

Fig pudding also can be purchased in cans, and is a very rich and popular dish. The containers of both puddings open easily, leaving the pudding unbroken. All that is necessary to heat the pudding, is put the can in boiling water for at least 20 minutes, open, add a sauce made by melting butter, sugar and vanilla favoring, and garnish with a sprig of evergreen, or a bit of whipped cream, or both.

Heavy puddings are more easily digested when eaten with black coffee.

TRIMMED WITH BRIGHT RABBIT YARN

THE English idea in out-of-doors clothes is becoming more and more popular in this country as the girl who goes in for sports things knows. English girls wear woolly hats and knitted coats or frocks. Imported hats are beyond the reach of the average purse but the American girl can make very English looking hats for herself. This year a new English yarn has made its appearance in this country. It is spun from the fur of white Angora rabbits and is delightfully furry and fluffy. It may be had in a wide range of colors.

The hats sketched are all decorated with this new Angora yarn. The first hat is made of hunter's green satin with a pinky orange brim of fine felt. The crown is embroidered in tangerine, tan, russet and cinnamon. The middle hat is beige duvetyne with a satin brim. The embroidery, a very simple straight stitch design is carried out in Antwerp blue and French blue. The satin brim matches the darker shade, the Antwerp blue. This is particularly becoming to the girl with blue eyes. The third hat is a felt that is trimmed with a removable band embroidered in Chinese red, crimson, petunia and rose embroidered wool. A few small pom-poms of this furry wool adorn the right side. This band can be "washed" on grey, white, black or pale rose felt hats. As a girl uses colored Angora yarn new ideas and color combinations will occur to her.

Aunt Celimena walked calmly down the remaining stairs, and seated herself on one of the straight-backed chairs that flanked the hall mirror. Mr. Brewster, after a moment of hesitation, took the other. It was not his custom to sit while there were ladies standing, but to be waked suddenly in the middle of the night, by such sounds as those which had reached him through his open window, had proved exceedingly unnerving—particularly on top of the unprecedented series of adventures that had occupied the previous day and night.

It was McTish who broke the awkward little pause that followed. "It's no to be wondered at that you're a bit upset, ma'am," he said sympathetically. "It's been something of a strain even for myself, that's been in the service a long while. But I didn't think I ever laid a trap for smugglers afore that caught so many extraneous folks in it." He waved his hand to include his entire audience, ending with a forefinger pointed significantly at Sweetie. "With one exception."

"We must get all this straightened out in orderly fashion. From what you have explained," Aunt Celimena addressed herself to McTish, "it is now clear to me that you are a United States Revenue officer. Were those—those people last night, connected with rum running—if that is what it is called? Please continue with what you were saying."

"As useful as it is smart is this frock in jersey—natural color, of course. The front and long, close-fitting sleeves are trimmed with fancy buttons in a soft shade of brown, and there are inserted pockets on either side of the front. Where the underfaced front is slashed and turned back to form revers, a tiny vestee of white silk shows. The collar corresponds with the vestee. Medium size requires 2 1/4 yards 54-inch material."

Pictorial Review Printed Pattern No. 2659. Sizes, 14 to 20 years and 34 to 44 inches bust. Price, 45 cents.

"And where did we get off the straight an' narrow, Pooch and I?" Sweetie asked. "Wait a bit—" He held up an eager hand. "I'm just remembering something. Pooch told me to follow that car ahead, and at the Roslyn hill, on an impulse, I turned off toward New York, instead of sticking to the Mincola road."

"You've hit it," Sweetie acknowledged. "We sure thought Pooch was makin' tracks with the fifty thou', then."

"H'm, I begin to see a lot of things," Sweetie chuckled. "And of course I was supposed to be the messenger from the Shanghai Line—in other words, McTish himself. Oh, Lord, what a mess!"

"Mr. Brewster!" Aunt Celimena's voice cut ominously into the silence that followed Sweetie's exclamation.

The little lawyer straightened up suddenly. As the story progressed an increasing nervousness had seemed to possess him.

"Why, yes, Miss Moore?" With an evident stiffening against some expected blow, Adam Brewster faced his client.

And quickly enough, as brief questions and briefer answers flashed between these two, the reasons for the lawyer's discomfiture became apparent. On her attorney's urgent recommendation, it developed, Celimena Moore had invested heavily in the Shanghai Line—so extensively that she was, in fact, a majority stockholder.

"You realize, sir—in the good lady's rasping voice spoke the outraged sensibilities of generations of God-fearing New Englanders—"You realize that through your advice I find a considerable portion of my income derived from drug smuggling?"

"But, my dear Miss Cel—" "But me no buts! It's true, isn't it?"—she turned again to McTish—"that the company's done this before?" McTish nodded. "It was your business, Mr. Brewster, to know, to protect me from such a situation. Oh, it's horrible, shameful! I'm done, with such enterprises! I'm done."

Exactly what else Aunt Celimena was done with remained for that moment undetermined, for Connemara, brisk tactician that she was, seized the opening.

"Auntie, dear," she purred, "you're done too, aren't you, with all that foolery about the will? Just see the trouble it's made. Surely all you want is for me to marry the right man."

"I am, I do." The old lady snapped out the double-barreled affirmative belligerently. "You, Mr. Brewster, I want to draw up a new will tomorrow—no... what's that?... three o'clock?..."

"No, today! How disgracefully late! We must, we really must, get off to bed at once."

(To be continued)

In a little while every American family will take the money saved by federal tax reduction and spend it on a better car.

SYD CHAPLIN STAR IN FILM AT CALIFORNIA

Warner Brothers outbid all other picture producers for the services of Syd Chaplin, because they believed they had the very story he needed to duplicate his phenomenal success in "Charley's Aunt."

"The Man on the Box," the celebrated novel and play by Harold MacGrath, was the vehicle selected for Chaplin, and it will begin a two day run starting today at the California theatre with Chaplin heading a cast that includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles F. Reisner, Charles Gerard and Henry Barrowes.

The story concerns the adventures of charming Bob Warbuton, who finds himself amusingly involved in a hornet's nest of intrigue that leaves him homeless and jobless, in the mysterious night, clad only in his pajamas. He has invested $50,000 in a new flying machine and two Russian spies are intent upon stealing the plans of the plane. Romance stalks unrelentingly throughout the picture, which is said to be a series of ridiculous misadventures.

Charles A. Logue adapted the novel to the screen, and Julien Josephson wrote the scenario. Charles "Chuck" Reisner directed.

Other features on the same program include "Midi in Morocco" a Lippino Lane comedy, and "The Making of a Hero" a picture in "Reelwork" by Harry Oakley.

"Business houses all over the city have announced their cooperation. An edition of four of the best known carols is being prepared for popular distribution. We hope every human voice in Chicago will be raised in songs of good will this Christmas."

SYD CHAPLIN in "THE MAN ON THE BOX," A Warner Picture

'The Forbidden Paradise' Film At the Richmond

"Forbidden Paradise" an Ernest Lubitsch-Pafamout production starring Pola Negri, will be featured at the Richmond theatre today and tomorrow.

The story, adapted from the stage play, "The Zarina" is a romance of love and intrigue in an unnamed Balkan kingdom. Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke are featured in support of the star.

Here's Pola in the kind of a role that made her famous in a production directed by the man who first discovered her and introduced her to the American public in "Passion." Here's Pola displaying all the charm and seductiveness that have made her one of the most talked of personages on the screen today in a picture directed by a man who knows her every whim and fancy, a man who, so to speak, has grown right up with her on the screen, "Forbidden Paradise" in other words, is a Negri-Lubitsch knockout, a picture to please everyone.

Agnes Christine Johnson and Hans Kray adapted the story for the screen. Fred Maletsky, Dick De Ruiz, Mame D'Aumery and others have important roles in the cast. If you liked Pola in her earlier picture, you'll fairly rave over her in "Forbidden Paradise." It's a real entertainer by a master producer.

Other features on the same program include "Below Zero" a Lige Conley comedy; "Prizma" the screen magazine.

Santa Claus and Team On Visit to Local Children

Pettis, and Donald Phillips. These scouts represented Troops 3 and 4.

Santa Claus was accompanied by Robert H. Wilson and Edgar Wait of the Bulletin who are acting as his host during his stay here. The reindeer team is in charge of Mike Nilluka a lap herder who came all the way from Alaska with the team, Jack Brown field trainer of the herd and Sam Young a famous cowboy in his ten gallon hat, and Al Smith. This gave the children an opportunity to see not only Santa and his team but those who train the animals for their sleigh and take care of them during the season when they are being worked overtime.

After the procession had made its way down Macdonald Avenue witnessed by thousands of children more than fifty automobiles acted as an escort to Santa and crew to the Richmond Ferry.

At the Ferry another difficulty was encountered by Santa Claus for the ferry attendants were at a loss as to how to classify the reindeer in taking them across the ferry. It was discovered however that Marie Macdonald Jence had already made arrangements for the animals as horses and as lowly horses they were labeled until they left the ferry in San Francisco where they again took the form of reindeer.

In parting the party of Santa Claus praised Fire Chief W. R. Cooper and Police Chief Dan Cox for their cooperation in taking the crew safely through the streets. Night watchman Emil W. Grafen-ecker and officer Thomas M. Bynum were complimented by Santa Claus for their work in helping to handle the crowd.

In the attraction which was arranged yesterday the Merchants Association has again demonstrated its willingness to give Richmond an opportunity to get in on everything that is going on.

NOW-A-DAYS OLD SANTA CLAUS HAS SO MANY BOYS AND GIRLS TO VISIT
HOW LUCKY THAT HE HAS AN UP-TO-DATE BUICK TO HELP HIS REINDEER TEAM

SPRIT OF XMAS

(By C. C. Kratzer)

So many little girls and boys
(And many big folks, too),
Have wondered how, on Christmas Eve,
I ever do get through.

I have so many miles to ride
Before my work is done.
I fill a million stockings full
And never do miss one.

I cross white Russia's frozen
steppes,
I visit fair Japan.

I go to farthest Africa
And strange old Hindustan.

To little girls and manly boys
Most always I can give Exactly what they want the most,
Wherever they may live.

I have so many little ones
Who are so far apart,
My reindeers must be, oh, so fast,
As back and forth they dart.

You'd think that they were magic steeds,
As with a bound and heave
They whisk me over the highest hills.

On every Christmas Eve.

But even magic little steeds
Could never do it all;
So many boys want soldier's drums,
And every girl a doll.

How lucky, when I'm growing old,
And all my reindeers, too,
That I can have a brand new way
To bring your gifts to you.

For now, you see, I've switched my sleigh
For a new Buick car,
So when my little 'deers get tired,
I hitch them to a star

And leaving them I drive away
To finish up my pack,
While oftentimes they go to sleep
And snore 'til I get back.

So when I hurry back again,
And find them snoring deep,
I bundle them into my car
And drive them home asleep.

Oakland Police In Running Fight With Auto Bandits

Police authorities of the East Bay region are combing the surrounding territory for four alleged auto bandits who led the Oakland police, firing shots in a mad chase through the Claremont district into the heart of Oakland, vanishing behind a street car at Forty-fifth and San Pablo avenue early yesterday.

The authorities had been warned that the bandits had stripped and abandoned an automobile believed stolen at the Oak Spring service station on the Tunnel Road, and encountered them above the Hotel Claremont. Shots were fired in an attempt to stop them, but the bandits started a chase down Claremont avenue to Telegraph, heading south. Several commands were given to stop, but were disregarded. Patrolman Bre-ton fired a volley into the gasoline tank and rear tires of the fugitive car, but just at Grove street they dashed in front of a passing car and when the vision was cleared there was no trace of the bandit's machine.

Opportunity Here Is Greatest Says C. C. Barbikas

C. C. Barbikas of this city who has been abroad for the past five months in England, France, Italy and the Balkan States, states that in spite of the many large cities he visited while on his trip he finds that he did not see another section of the country which offered such fine opportunities as the East Bay Cities, and that Richmond was especially well situated for the progress and advancement in its harbor development and as a railroad center.
Barbikas met many American

El Cerrito Xmas Party Successful

The community Christmas tree held Monday night for the children of El Cerrito at Huber Hall was a great success and will probably be held every year hereafter.

The evening was taken up with a short program after which Santa Claus distributed candy, nuts and fruits to the children.

The Christmas tree was fostered by all the civic organizations of El Cerrito and much credit is due the committee which worked so hard to make it a success.

Following is the committee in charge. Mrs. Cora J. M. Simonson, chairman, Mesdames, Charles Weden, Kirk Gray, George Adams,
M. Wright, R. MacMichaels, A.
Hills and D. Pryde.

High Cagers Meet Mission Tonight

The Richmond Union High School cagers will meet Mission High School at the local High School Gymnasium tonight at 7:30. The San Francisco boys are raised as having one of the best teams on the coast but Coach Hill's men are confident of annexing the visiting scalps.

Hill will probably use the following line up: Villalvo, forward, Dyer or Barbieri, forward, O. Johnson, center, Gualdoni and Millevich or Santella, guards.

The game will be refereed by A. H. Veale of the Berkeley Y. M. C. A. Veale is one of the best basketball referees in the East Bay sections.

OAKLAND TEAM TAKES GAME FROM LOCALS

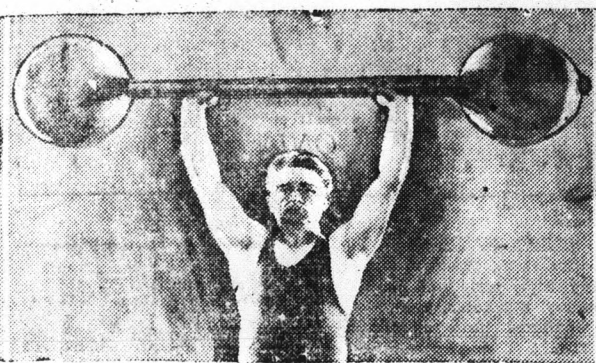

In a fast and furious game the Standard Oil No. 2 cagers, went down to the Plymouth Center club of Oakland, 21-18. Tillison for the Standard did the basket work, bagging down 14 points. Hardy for the Oaklanders annexed 21 points.

The game was a close one from the beginning and it was only in the last few minutes that the Oakland club bagged the three points and won the game.

Standard Oil No. 2—Tillison, f. 15; Libby, f. 0; Prolo, c. 2; Corneil, c. 2; Francis, g. 0; Substitutes: Lukenbaugh, Carson and Noverini.

The Pullman quintet were much taller and drew the buckets. Daley, had his eagle eye and accounted for 16 points, while Gadbury added up eight.

Gerkin for the losers bagged five and Bertini four.

Line-up:

Kearney-Furrers—Bertoni, f. 4; Malinowski, f. 0; Hutton, c. 2; Mariola, g. 0; Gerkin, g. 5; Martini, substitute.

Battle Against World Court Is In Full Swing

ple of New England to rally as they did behind Senator Lodge in the other fight, and predicts that the uprising will take place.

As a result of this appeal New England States, local experts appear to foresee, again may take the lead in the fight to keep the country out of the European political family.

In his call to the home folk to speak out, among other things Tinkham says:

Both New England and the country look to Massachusetts for the assertion of patriotic principles and virile leadership.

Massachusetts is opposed to internationalism and her position should not be misrepresented, but demonstrated to the country.

The direct assault upon the integrity of our nationality now being made by the internationalists should be replaced here and now.

The attack now being made upon our national independence and liberty is more subtle today than it was in 1920 and, therefore, is more dangerous.

Propaganda from unpatriotic source, international finance and the occult influence of alien interest has spread a menacing net over the United States in relation to this issue.

American tradition has approved of the United States entering only an international court representing directly the sovereign nations, a non-political court. The permanent court of international justice, the League of Nations is a court which represents an intermediary, namely the League of Nations, an alien, political and military mechanism.

Massachusetts is for American independence, complete and unimpaired, for no foreign entangling alliances and for a robust and unflinching policy of nationalism.

The Tinkham appeal is bound to stir political organizations throughout New England, local experts believe, particularly his plain inference that President Coolidge is not representing the majority sentiment of the home State in asking the Senate to adhere to the court.

Amended regulations governing the control of industrial alcohol have been promulgated, which place this control squarely in the hands of the prohibition administrators.

Additional amendments, new regulations, and permit stipulations are designed better to control the handling of sacramental wines, medicinal whisky, industrial alcohol and cereal beverages with a view to encouraging legitimate industry and eliminating these sources of supply for the illicit liquor traffic.

It is useless to attempt to prophesy what may be accomplished under the new organization; it is impracticable to measure accurately what has already been accomplished; it can only be stated that vigorous action is being taken to make the law enforcement agencies as effective as possible.
